Loving the Church, Blessing the Nations

Pursuing the Role of Local Churches in Global Missions George Miley

"I am delighted with this courageous and balanced book, which helps us toward a more biblical concept of local churches and missions for the twentyfirst century." - Patrick Johnstone, WEC International, Author of Operation World.

Rediscovering the role God designed for the church in mission is a critical issue facing the missions movement today. That role is to glorify God by planting churches among every tongue, tribe, and nation. This book shows how churches can become centers of mission vision and implementation and so accomplish God's design for the local church.

The Global House Church Movement

Rad Zdero

A major church shift is happening all around the world. God is once again bringing back the power and simplicity of New Testament style Christianity. The Lord is raising up the global house church movement. Do you want to reach your friends and your nation with an approach to church life and church planting that is biblical and effective? If so, you need to read this book.

Church Planting Movements

How God is Redeeming a Lost World

David Garrison

Look at what God is doing! "Look to the nations. Watch and be utterly amazed!" Today this ancient prophecy is being fulfilled in ways never before dreamed possible. This book reveals how God is turning millions to new life in Jesus Christ through the miracle of Church Planting Movements. "The best book on church planting since the book of Acts." - Bruce Wilkinson, author of The Prayer of Jabez. "I am loving this book! Wow! God is going to use this greatly!" - Rick Warren, pastor and author of The Purpose Driven Church.

Through God's Eyes

A Bible Study of God's Motivations for Missions Patrick Cate

"Through God's Eyes is a fine inductive study for individuals or groups on the biblical meaning, motives, and message of the Church for world missions." - Dr. D. James Kennedy, Founder of Evangelism Explosion International. "What a great study." - George Verwer, Founder of Operation Mobilization. "A first rate workbook/introduction to the cause of missions. Its keen content is beautifuly and graphically laid out. There is nothing like it."

- Dr. Ralph D. Winter, Founder of the US Center for World Mission. WCL359-6 William Carey Library, 2004 8.5 x 11 Spiral, 172 pages List: $16.99 Our Price: $12.74 3 or more: $9.34*

Sharing Jesus WITH THE BUDDHIST WORLD

Sharing Jesus Holistically with the Buddhist World

David Lim and Steve Spaulding

This book contains the works of a group of Evangelical mission "reflective practitioners," who are committed to developing ways to evangelize the Buddhist peoples of the world. As various forms of Buddhism gain popularity, this network tries to disclose creative approaches to reach them with the gospel communicated in culturally sensitive ways and with transformational impact. The five major dimensions of a holistic witness among Buddhist peoples discussed in this book are: experiential dialogue, intellectual dialogue, biblical exposition, cultural sensitivity, and economic development. WCL508-4 he article I like best this time is the one entitled, "Riding the Waves." It is an overdue caution that we all need to heed. In it Doug Williams helpfully and courteously points out what is often an excess of emotion in the portrayal of new mission ideas and the accompanying fact that new approaches are often presented along with snide and unfair remarks about earlier endeavors.

But the most important page in this issue is page four where you can read the details about this year's gathering of the ISFM—the International Society for Frontier Missiology. And the most important item in that big black announcement is the final "bullet" which speaks of "an extraordinary youth track." Yes, the intergenerational dimension is unique to the ISFM. Not the APM (Association of Professors of Mission), not the ASM (American Society of Missiology), not the EMS (Evangelical Missiological Society), none of these intentionally includes younger people as members and participants.

Do you know young people who are excited about missions who would love to know about this conference? Tell 'em!

Karl Franklin's proposal is a remarkably significant simplification of the approach to Bible translation in the case of the smaller linguistic communities. What he suggests cannot be faulted except to note that once you postpone use of the actual text of the Bible an organization as diverse as Wycliffe will for the first time face a formerly unnoticed diversity of thinking about the first words of the Gospel. That is, what stories are you going to choose!

The serious charge of bigotry in the lengthy, creative, thoughtful piece by Pani is not something to say yes or no to but to ponder and learn from as best we can. He gives us a lot to ponder.

My own article, "Growing Up With The Bible," is designed to allay any fears about the unusual conclusions I have been coming to recently. My single most important desire in all this thinking is to be fair to the Bible. The backbone of my life has been the steady deeper understanding of the Bible. That's where these new thoughts come from.

Oh yes, I need to apologize for reviewing my own book. I can at least say that it is focused very specifically on frontiers in mission.

Joint Gathering of Leaders of Mission Agencies, Churches, and Relief-and-Development Organizations

ynergistic Kingdom dvance among the

Least and the Lost

September 12-15, 2005 — Denver, Colorado

The International Society for Frontier Missiology (ISFM) will gather with the Evangelical Fellowship of Mission Agencies (EFMA) and other mission associations and church leaders to engage issues ranging from AIDS and post-tsunami reconstruction to becoming "Christian" in a post-Christian world and doing church where there is none. ISFM-track topics include:

- Keys to Kingdom Advance why the current Church cannot succeed!
- The True Nature of the Church—why churchplanting won't work!
- Jesus Movements in Islam why past approaches don't work!
- The Supremacy of Christ—is the real Jesus in the Qur'an?
- Extraordinary Youth-Track Meetings—e-mail jon.pon@wciu.edu

Conference information: www.efmamissions.org or call (770) 457-6677

The IJFM is published in the name of the International Student Leaders Coalition for Frontier Missions, a fellowship of younger leaders committed to the purposes of the twin consultations of Edinburgh 1980: The World Consultation on Frontier Missions and the International Student Consultation on Frontier Missions. As an expression of the ongoing concerns of Edinburgh 1980, the IJFM seeks to:

- promote intergenerational dialogue between senior and junior mission leaders;
- see cultivate an international fraternity of thought in the development of frontier missiology;
- be highlight the need to maintain, renew, and create mission agencies as vehicles for frontier missions;
- see encourage multidimensional and interdisciplinary studies;
- ox foster spiritual devotion as well as intellectual growth; and
- ∞ advocate "A Church for Every People."

Mission frontiers, like other frontiers, represent boundaries or barriers beyond which we must go yet beyond which we may not be able to see clearly and boundaries which may even be disputed or denied. Their study involves the discovery and evaluation of the unknown or even the reevaluation of the known. But unlike other frontiers, mission frontiers is a subject specifically concerned to explore and exposit areas and ideas and insights related to the glorification of God in all the nations (peoples) of the world, "to open their eyes, to turn them from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God." (Acts 26:18)

Subscribers and other readers of the IJFM (due to ongoing promotion) come from a wide variety of backgrounds. Mission professors, field missionaries, young adult mission mobilizers, college librarians, mission executives, and mission researchers all look to the IJFM for the latest thinking in frontier missiology.
